JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Many Philadelphians Seek White Sulphur Springs for Change of Air-Miss Baily Engaged to Lieutenant Dent. Mary Helps Her Country-men always thinks of people as going north, but a lot of them go south, you know, and for that matter it is cool in the mountains whether north or south. The Alleghanies are mighty popular and there are a number of Philadelphians at present down at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Glasgow, Jr., are there and intend spending the summer. Mr. Glasgow, you know, is counsel for the United States food administration. Last week Mr. Glasgow spoke at a war-savings stamp meeting in Lewisburg, and a lot of people from White Sulphur motored over Howard Slocum introduced Mr. Glasgow. Mrs. George Dallas Dixon has gone to the Springs for the summer and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Paul is there, too.

A little bride and bridegroom of a week ago have gone there, too, the John C. Bell Jrg. She was Sarah Baker, you know, and was married to Jack Bell out at Bala on June 29. They are both awfully good tennis players and are out on the courts every day, I'm told. Sarah, who is a member of the Merion, is considered one of the best women players, and Jack is a member of the Philadelphia Cricket Club and quite bracker-jack. Oh, Nancy! How can you? That's simply awful! Such a pun!

Miss Josephine McCulloh is at White Sulphur Springs, too, She is going to spend the summer there as the guest of Mrs. Henry Rutledge Buist, of Charleston, S. C., who has a cottage in what is known as the Baltimore row.

And Mrs. Charles Newbold Welsh has gone down to the Springs and has taken a cottage at the Pines, Sunset Farms. The Pines commands one of the most beautiful views in that section and whole parties of people motor up there through the summer for the chicken and waffle dinners.

ISN'T it interesting about Edith Baily's engagement? Did you ever see such a family for marrying? All the cousins and sisters married in no time and now Edith! The lucky man is Lieutenant Magruder Dent and he's in the aviation section of the army.

Edith is the younger daughter of Mr. Frederick Baily, of Cloverton, Ardmore. Her older sisters, Carolyn and Theodate, married Theodore Mitchell Hastings and J. Lloyd Coates, respectively; that is, Carolyn is Mrs. Hastings and Theo is Mrs. Coates. Fisher Baily, who is now stationed in Washington, is a brother.

Edith's cousin Molly married. Brewster Koons and Frances, another cousin, married Joe Keene about two years ago. Edith made her debut some three years ago and. has been very popular in the younger set.

Lieutenant Dent is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Magruder Dent, of Alexandria. Va. The wedding, I understand, will take place in the near future.

DON'T you love to hear of all the things the children are doing for their own dear soldiers and sailors? Little Mary. aged ten, has a big brother in the air service and is mightily interested in everything pertaining to the army or navy The youngsters were planning a musicale for the benefit of the Department of Navy Recreation and big sister told it over the

Then Mary came to the telephone and this is what she said:

"Oh, yes, Ethel and I are going to have a play or musicale. We give one every year, you know, at our house, and it's to be for the Navy Recreation and the tickets are ten cents, and for thirty cents you can be a patroness, and that means you can

"The first thing on the program will be a solo by Tom; he's fourteen and a very good singer. Then Anne will recite 'Peter Pan' and then I do a dance by myself."

"What kind of a dance?" I asked. "Oh-er-a Spanish dance," very triumphantly. "And then little Marie Louise, who is only five, you know, recites 'I have a little pony, his name is Dapple Gray." She's rather shy and always pulls up her socks; but it's very cute.

"Then Ethel, dressed up in a boy's sailor suit, reads about a comfort kit, and then we both do a dance together, an-er-aathletic dance. (I think she meant esthetic, but that is rather hard.) And it ends with a patriotic tableau that we made up ourselves, called 'Saluting the Flag.' Ethel and I wear Red Cross costumes and nold the American flag, and the other girls are knitting, and Tom and Joe wear their Boy Scout uniforms and salute

"I must go now and sell tickets to some of Daddy's friends, so good-by-but-what night will it be in the paper?" NANCY WYNNE.

ONE afternoon a wood-cutting detail in charge of Sergeant Marsh was charged y a wild boar, and all members of the detail climbed to the tree tops in a hurry. The boar kept them treed there all night, and the next day a squad was sent in search of the missing soldiers. The boar charged the equad, and these soldiers were also obliged to adjourn to the branches. Finally one of the new arrivals killed the animal with a well-directed shad behind the cell-directed shot behind the ear.

The infantrymen had daily reminders that they were right on the edge of the war-rater. The boom of big guns reached their ears constantly and enemy airplanes were continually flying over the American bar-racks in an effort to collect data on the strength of the first detachment of General Pershing's forces. Frequently the Huns exhibited their kultur by bombing hospitals

A few miles back of the front line the Americans left the box cars and began on foot the last stage of the journey to the trenches. The country grew more desolate as they advanced. Our boys saw hundreds of graves marked by little wooden crosses and there were old, ruined dugouts and trenches which the French had taken from the Germans. There were huge shell craters and the ground was scattered with rusty infantry The Americans saw long lines of munition and supply trains creeping forward and now the noise of the bir guns became deafening.

It was dusk when the Yankees arrived at the trenches. Orders came to stop smok-ing and talk only in whispers as they entered line. Stiently and in single file the Yanks and other shelters. The doughboys were wild with enthusiasm when the order came to march to the frontwhen the order came to march to the front-line trenches. The business of packing up followed. Bayonets were sharpened with gleeful zeal and fond farewells were ex-changed with petite madernoiseles. Local changed with petite mudemoiselies. Local shops and company stores were emptied of all the candy and other luxuries they contained. Kits were inspected with the closest attention to every detail, new uniforms and equipment were doled out liberally and feet and teeth became matters of keen curiously to officers.

When everything was in readiness the Americans were packed into box cars with their equipment and the first stage of the journey to the front line was begun. As they drew nearer to the front the Yanks saw everywhere gruesome evidence of the blasting hand of the Hun. They passed dozens of places which had once been the sites of prosperous, happy villages, but were now un-pushed forward in the winding traverse until they reached the first-line trench, where they were greeted enthusiastically by the French troops they were to relieve.

The French, clad in their blue-gray uniforms and tin bats, kissed and bugged their new American allies after the French custom

Before the French filed away to their rest station they assured the Americans that the sector was the quietest on the whole from line. Because of this they said it had been called the "peace sector." But I guess the shelling our battery had given the enemy in the early morning had changed his disposition, for bedlam broke loose soon after the French departed.

Maybe a spy had carried word to the Ger that Americans had taken over the Stars and Stripes in the Breeze

Be that as it may, the Yanks had no rest that night. The Huns rained shells on our line and one American was killed. The shell-ing became more violent when morning dawned and the boches saw the Stars and Stripes fluttering proudly to the breeze over the sector. The sight of that glorious banner Pershing's forces—took positions in favorable spots along the sector, and watched their chances with keen Yankee eyes. And every time the smallest part of a Hun's anatomy showed on the other side, crack! would go an American rife. The bullets that sped over No Man's Land rarely missed their mark. The snipers estimated they bagged soven tiermans that day, which was fair retribution of the killing of one clean, honest Godfearing American soldier.

But right away the boohes employed trickery to get even with the Americans. In some manner they snuggled a machine gunere out into No Man's Land. From his concealed position this gunner was able to rake

SOLDIERS' FAMILIES TO HAVE VACATIONS

Home Service Department of Red | Reception Will Be Given in Chi-Cross Appeals for Aid in Project

A call for holiday week in the country omes from the Red Cross, a department of which is providing recreational pleasure for soldiers' families.

Miss A. P. Hutchinson, as chairman of the committee on vacations for families of sol-diers, plans to send at least 1600 families to the country for a week or more during the hottest part of summer.

A romp over green fields, the smell of hay and clover and an occasional tree to climb are incidentals of a summer outing desired by the normal youngster. The home service department of the Red Cross, in the capacity of second mother to the soldiers and their dependents, will give aid in this as well as in the more materia but not less needful details of life. The Country Week Association has been generous in the offer to care for many famil-ies. Institutions that are unable to offer hospitality quite free of cost are taking women and children at a small charge, paid by the Red Cross. The committee, on which are Miss A. P. Hutchinson, Miss K. son and Mrs. T. A. Hartung, hopes to have other country places at its disposal when the need becomes more generally known. "Especially do we need places to which to send Catholic women." declared Mrs.

Hartung. "We have had few offers of homes

Monday morning twenty-five foreign boys, who are sons of soldiers, will go to Univer-sity Camp, in the Green Hills, thirty miles away, to stay twelve happy days.
